

Cable tray mesh cable tray price

AI Overview

Wire mesh cable trays typically range from $20 to $100 per 5-foot section, depending on size, material, and finish. Price Range and Factors The cost of wire mesh cable trays varies based on length, width, depth, material, and finish. Standard 5-foot sections with a 2-inch depth and widths of 4, 6, 8, or 12 inches generally cost between $20 and $100 per section. Stainless steel or galvanized finishes are more expensive due to corrosion resistance and durability, while zinc-plated steel options are more budget-friendly. Accessories such as brackets, couplers, and ceiling hangers can add to the overall cost. For example, a 50-pack coupler kit or specialized wall brackets may range from $30 to $150, depending on the type and material. Applications and Considerations Wire mesh cable trays are widely used in data centers, network closets, industrial facilities, hospitals, and commercial buildings. They allow for ventilation, easy cable routing, and protection against abrasion. Prices may also vary based on supplier, shipping, and bulk purchase discounts. Supplier Examples EAE Electric offers stainless steel and galvanized trays with pricing influenced by size and finish. Grainger provides a variety of mesh trays suitable for complex cable runs, with real-time pricing that adjusts based on availability. Amazon (Kable Kontrol) lists 5-foot zinc-plated steel trays with widths from 4 to 12 inches, typically in the $20–$100 range per section. McMaster-Carr offers over 850 wire mesh tray products, including highly corrosion-resistant options, with pricing varying by style and size. When budgeting, consider tray size, material, accessories, and installation requirements, as these factors significantly influence the total cost of a cable management system.
