

Ranked No 1 Optical Cable Manufacturer in Central Asia

AI Overview

YOFC (Yangtze Optical Fibre and Cable Joint Stock Limited Company) is widely recognized as the leading optical cable manufacturer with significant influence in Central Asia. Overview of YOFC YOFC, headquartered in Wuhan, China, is China's largest fiber optic cable producer and a global leader with a 12% share of the worldwide market. The company operates 13 state-of-the-art manufacturing plants and produces 300 million core-kilometers annually, supplying high-performance optical cables to over 100 countries, including Central Asian nations. YOFC's product portfolio includes ultra-low-loss fibers, high-density multi-core cables, armored outdoor cables, and submarine cables, making it suitable for telecom, data centers, and large-scale infrastructure projects.

Why YOFC Leads in Central Asia

Regional Reach: YOFC exports extensively to Central Asia, leveraging proximity and strong logistics networks from China.

Product Quality: Their cables comply with international standards such as ITU-T G.652 and IEC 60794, ensuring reliability in harsh climates and long-distance transmission.

Innovation: YOFC invests heavily in R&D (USD 200M annually), developing quantum-safe fibers and customized loose-tube designs, which are critical for modern telecom networks.

Customization and Support: The company offers tailored solutions for FTTH, 5G, and high-capacity backbone networks, with rapid prototyping and strong after-sales support.

Other Notable Manufacturers in the Region

While YOFC dominates, other manufacturers with regional influence include:

- Asian Cables (India): Offers 6,00,000 fiber km of optical cables annually and serves over 90 countries, including Central Asia.
- Weichuang Optics (China): Provides customized optical solutions and is trusted by major telecom operators, though with smaller production scale compared to YOFC.
- Birla Cable Ltd. (India): Known for a wi...
